Â T echnical Communication Today was written for introduction to technical communication or technicalÂ writing courses taught most often inÂ English Departments.Â Â Technical Communication Today remains the only text to fullyÂ centralize the computer in the technical workplace, presenting howÂ writers useÂ computers throughout their communication process.Â Â Â WritersÂ use their computers to help them think, research, compose, design, and edit. Not only isÂ Technical Communication Today firmly rooted in coreÂ rhetorical principles, but the text also presents computers asÂ thinking toolsÂ that powerfully influence how we develop, produce, design, and deliver technical documents and presentations.Â Â Technical CommunicationÂ TodayÂ speaks to today's studentsÂ and how they expect to learn information. Instructional narrative isÂ à œchunked,â • so thatÂ readable portions of text are combined with graphics. This presentationÂ facilitate learning, and models the way todayâ ™s technical documents should be designed. Additionally, the chunkedÂ presentation integrates an awareness of how documents are readâ "often à œraidedâ • by readers seekingÂ the information they need.Â Â By mirroring these processes in its content and structure,Â Technical Communication TodayÂ offers readersÂ a higher level of accessibility.
